Economic Worries Plague the Nation

The whole nation is on high alert due to continuing economic issues. The Dow Jones Industrial Measure continues to fluctuate widely, causing many to speculate that America's financial future is in very dire straits.

"I'm extremely worried about the future of our country," reports middle school librarian Gretchen Hazlin. "How do we function as educators in such uncertain times?" Krissy Ronan, high school librarian, echoes her concerns, explaining that her worries for the county follow her through her work life and into her personal life. "I worry often about my family's financial security and well-being," Ronan explains. "It's extremely hard to avoid all the anxiety."

If the nation continues on this dangerous path, economists aren't sure what the future holds, exactly. "We know that the panic this insecurity is causing in people is extremely bad for the banking industry," reports economist Gerome Cassidy. "People are conserving their money however they can." Polling has indicated that Americans have lost faith in the banking industry all together. Loans are down, spending is down, and there is even anecdotal evidence that Americans are literally storing their paychecks underneath their mattresses.

With such uncertainty in the air, what can the average American really do? President Herbert Hoover advises Americans to remain calm and continue to live their lives in the manner to which they've become accustomed. Other recommendations are not as rosy, however. "I'm extremely concerned about our future," says newspaper man Ezra Klein. "This instability and uncertainty should function as a wakeup call. We've indulged too often and grown comfortable with too much excess. The world is about to change, and I'm concerned Americans aren't

Gold Diggers of Broadway Debuts to Rave Reviews

Gold Diggers of Broadway has just opened in cinemas everywhere, and filmgoers are loving it! "It was a great deal of fun," reports local politician Jeremy Pevner. "Extremely well acted, interesting, and a great distraction from the everyday grind."

Following the cast of a lavish Broadway show, Gold Diggers of Broadway is an exciting romp through the glittering age of cinema. Romance, intrigue, largess—this film has something for everyone!

Adding to the excitement is the fact that local Hollywood hopeful Leslie Glenn Howard has landed a small role in the film. "I'm just a chorus girl," she explains, "but it is absolutely a dream come true." She's certainly riveting in the film, and we can only hope that this is the first of many performances that we'll see from the Northern Virginia native.

When you're ready for a night out at the movies, Gold Diggers of Broadway should be your first choice!
